

BERNARD E. BROWN

Director, Transatlantic Relations Project

Bernard E. Brown (Ph.D., Columbia) is Professor Emeritus of Political Science at the City University of New York (Graduate School). He previously taught at Vanderbilt University and SUNY-Buffalo, and has served as visiting professor at the Universities of Rennes (France), McGill (Canada), Delhi (India), Dakar (Senegal), and Saigon (Vietnam). He is author, coauthor, or editor of over a dozen books on comparative politics, French politics, and political theory, including: Comparative Politics (9th ed., 2000); L'Etat et la politique aux Etats-Unis (preface by Maurice Duverger, 1996); Socialism of a Different Kind: Reshaping the Left in France (1981); Protest in Paris, Anatomy of a Revolt (1974); New Directions in Comparative Politics (1962); The De Gaulle Republic: Quest for Unity (with Roy C. Macridis, rev. ed. 1963), etc., plus many articles in professional journals. He contributed articles to Pascal Perrineau and D. Reynié, editors, Dictionnaire du vote (2001); "The Government of India" in Michael Curtis, ed., Introduction to Comparative Government (5th ed., 2003); "Tocqueville and Publius," in A. Eisenstadt, ed., Reconsidering Tocqueville's Democracy in America (1988); etc. Also, editor, Great American Political Thinkers (2 vols., 1982); editor and coauthor, Cases in Comparative Politics (3rd ed., 1976); and The American Political System (rev. ed. 1971).

Among his most recent articles in the journal, American Foreign Policy Interests: "The United States and Europe: Partners, Rivals, Enemies?" (April 2004); "Charles Kupchan on The End of the American Era" (December 2003); "Europe Against America: A New Superpower Rivalry?" (August 2003); "Are Americans from Mars, Europeans from Venus?" (December 2002); "Journey to Brussels" (October 2002); "But What Is the National Interest?" (August 2002); "Europe's Rise—NATO's Demise?" (October 2001); "What is the New Diplomacy?" (February 2001); "NATO Hits a Land Mine" (February 2000); "Reinventing NATO" (February 1999); "Europe as Superpower?" (June 1997); "Old France in a New World" (October 1994).

He has received numerous awards, including a Rockefeller Foundation Humanities Fellowship, a National Endowment for the Humanities Fellowship, and several Fulbrights. Named "Mentor of Distinction" by the Women's Caucus of the American Political Science Association, 1989. Directed National Endowment for the Humanities summer seminars on Modern French Politics for college teachers held at the Institut d'Etudes Politiques de Paris, 1989, 1991, and 1993.